ALERT NOTICE

RE: Herbal Euphoria-Enhancing drugs
DATE: October 2008

Four students at Council Rock High School North in Newton, Penn., believed to be under the influence of an herbal supplement, were taken to a local hospital Monday, September 8, 2008. The students were taking herbal pills known to be "Snurfs". Other names of the same herbal ingredients are: "Snuffadelic" and "Red Dawn Vector Euphoria Enhancer". The boys "displayed erratic behavior" in school, said Jean Tanner, a spokesman for township police, who later determined the pills were an herbal supplement that might not be illegal ¹. The pills the boys were taking were small and pink. "Snurfs" are not as easy to get on-line right now, however "Red Dawn Vector Euphoria Enhancer" is very available. These herbal concoctions are so-called herbal euphoria-enhancing drugs which are gaining in popularity as the over-the-counter drugs of choice by teens². Experts say kids as young as 9 are taking the pills, but it is particularly popular among 9th and 10th graders.

Part of the danger of these pills is that their exact contents aren't known. What is known, however, is that they are not herbal and they are not safe. Experts believe the pills contain dextromethorphan.³ DXM, DEX, or ROBO, Robo-trippin', Entombed, Tombed and Tussin – as it is known by its users – is the cough suppressant ingredient in many over-the-counter medicines.

Dextromethorphan, a synthetic morphine analog chemically similar to morphine, was approved by the FDA in 1954 as a cough suppressant. Drug companies used DX to replace codeine in cough syrups in the early 1970's because of concerns over addiction to codeine. DXM is a member of the drug class Dissociative Anesthetics, and has psychedelic effects similar to Ketamine ("Special K") or Phencyclidine (PCP). Dextromethorphan heightens the sense of perceptual awareness, creating altered time perception, causing excitability, induces visual hallucinations and causes unresponsiveness to pain stimuli. "It was fun," one teen on a Web site said of his first Robo-trip. "But the day after, I felt like I was hit by a car." Another advantage highly publicized to kids on the internet with many over-the-counter drugs is, "cold medicines don't come back dirty in a UA (urinalysis)."

² Michael Windle, PhD, Chair of Behavior Sciences and Health Education at Emory University's Rollins School of Public Health

³ Children's Hospital of Philadelphia

Kids taking these herbal drugs are lulled into a false sense of security because they are labeled “herbal.” Ingredients such as Fevizia, Palenzia, and De la Amazon are listed, but no such herbs exist. It is believed all these products (Snufs, Snuffadelic, and Red Dawn Vector Euphoria Enhancer) contain DXM⁴. "They say it is not illegal and that it's an herb, so adolescents may think it is actually healthy for you," Windle says². "This is a clever marketing gimmick to sell it online. You remove any guilt these adolescents may have about taking a drug."

Symptoms caused by purported herbal supplements

At high doses, DXM causes the same kinds of symptoms seen with ketamine, a very dangerous drug of abuse known as “special K”:

- Memory loss
- Depression
- Anxiety
- Detachment from self
- Sense of Unreality (dissociative effects)
- Blurred sense of identity

In addition, DXM can cause hallucinations, loss of motor control, confusion, impaired judgment, blurred vision, dizziness, paranoia, excessive sweating, slurred speech, nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, irregular heartbeat, high blood pressure, headache, lethargy, numbness of fingers and toes, loss of consciousness, seizures, brain damage, and even death. Not a bad list of side effects from an herb.....right?

Seek medical help if your child shows these danger signs

Physical signs your child might be taking a substance include:

- Extreme tiredness and lethargy
- Dropping grades
- Flushed face
- Confusion
- Slurred Speech

Also, Vector Shots differ from Vector pills in that instead of waiting the two hour period for the tablets to kick-in the time is cut in half. Some individuals also feel that a significant difference is that the shot seems to be easier on your stomach. The nauseous feeling that may accompany vector pills is gone in the shot. However, they are both satisfying and get the job done. Some individuals may find it difficult to swallow tablets, while others do not have a problem at all. This is definitely an individual choice.
